PROLOGUE

"Old Mother Goose when
She wanted to wander,
Would ride through the air
On a very fine gander."

Now one day she flew
O'er our towers so tall
And messages we sent
As a plea and a call.

"Strike with your wand
That we again may see
All that was in the Land of Used-To-Be."

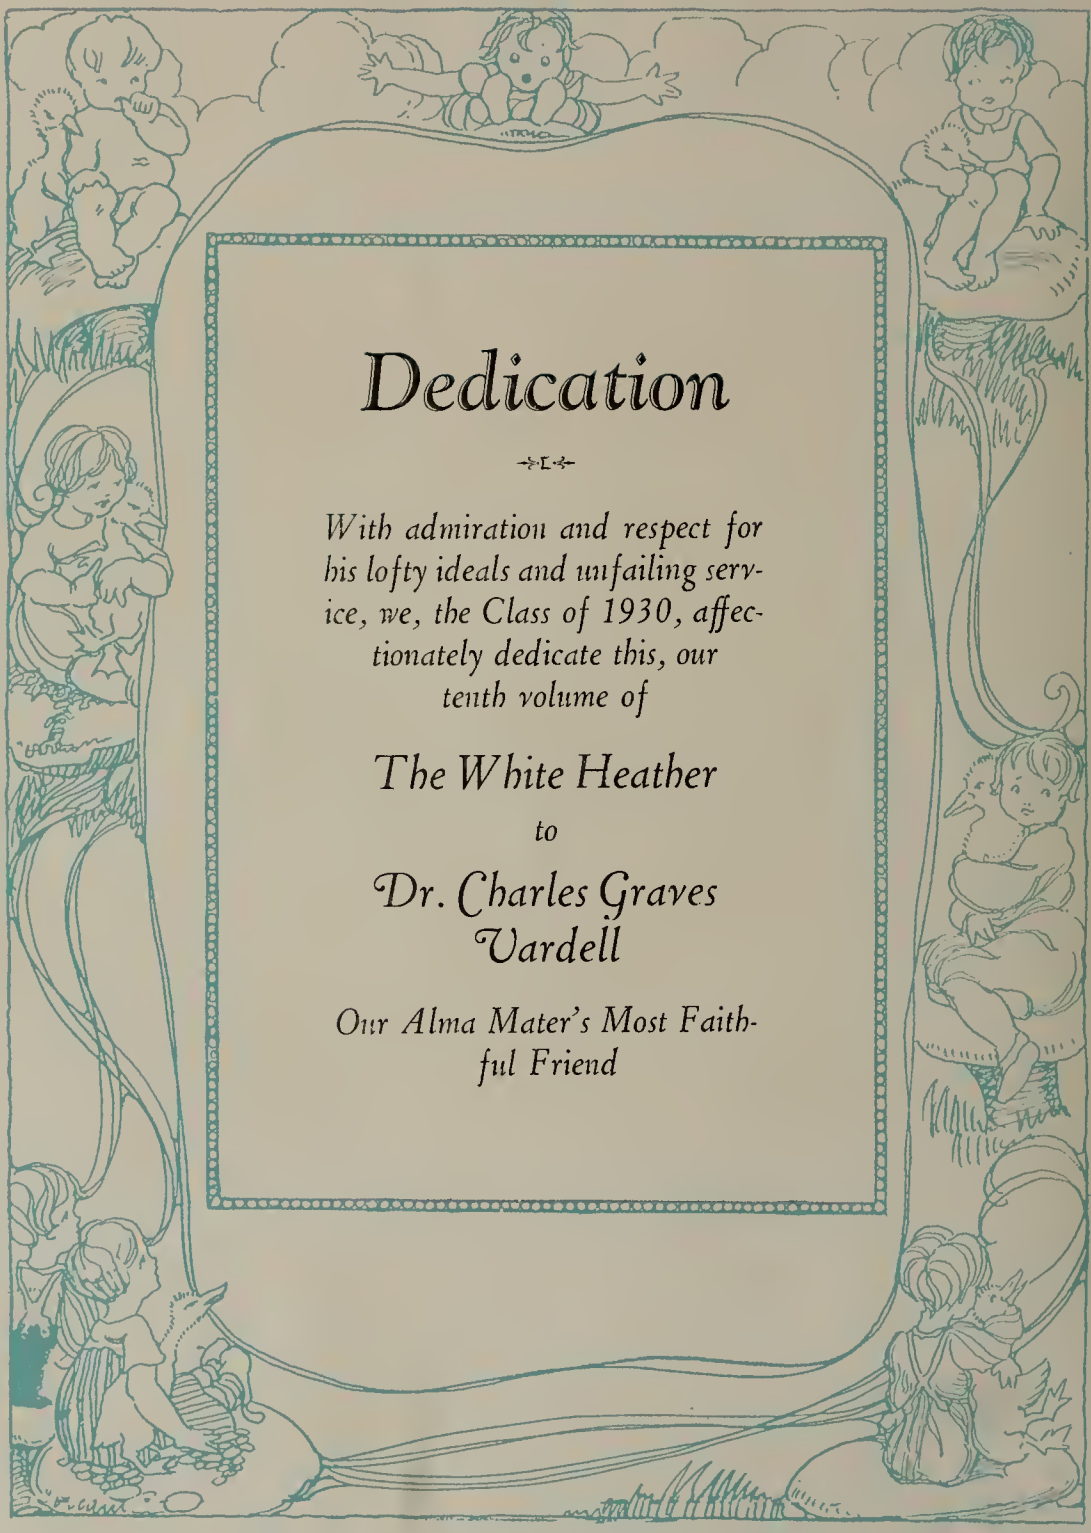
Call Jack Horner and
Show us again Bo Peep;
Little Boy Blue by
The Haystack fast asleep.

Put away your Books
And abandon every care,
Mother Goose now unfolds
Some of her visions rare.



Dedication

With admiration and respect for his lofty ideals and unfailing service, we, the Class of 1930, affectionately dedicate this, our tenth volume of

College Song

Far away from noisy tumult
And the city's throng,
Stands our cherished Alma Mater,
Worthy of our song.

On her wide and spacious campus
Springs of crystal rise,
Which for joy and health and beauty
She shall ever prize.

Stately pine trees waving o'er her,
Proud her guards to be,
Whisper faith and hope and courage—
Faithful listens she.

CHORUS

Now we lift our joyous chorus,
Full of love to thee.
Hail to thee, O Alma Mater!
Hail, O F. M. C.

TALE I
THE COLLEGE

How many miles to Wisdom Land?
Three score miles and ten.
Can I get there by the glow
of its light?
Yes, and back again.
If your wits are nimble and your heart is true
You can reach that Knowledge Castle
'Tis the very place for you.
Oh, how many joys in Wisdom Land?
Threescore joys & more—
Will there be aught for me
in Wisdom Land?
Yes, 'tis Pleasureville's store:
If you laugh & smile and your soul is bright
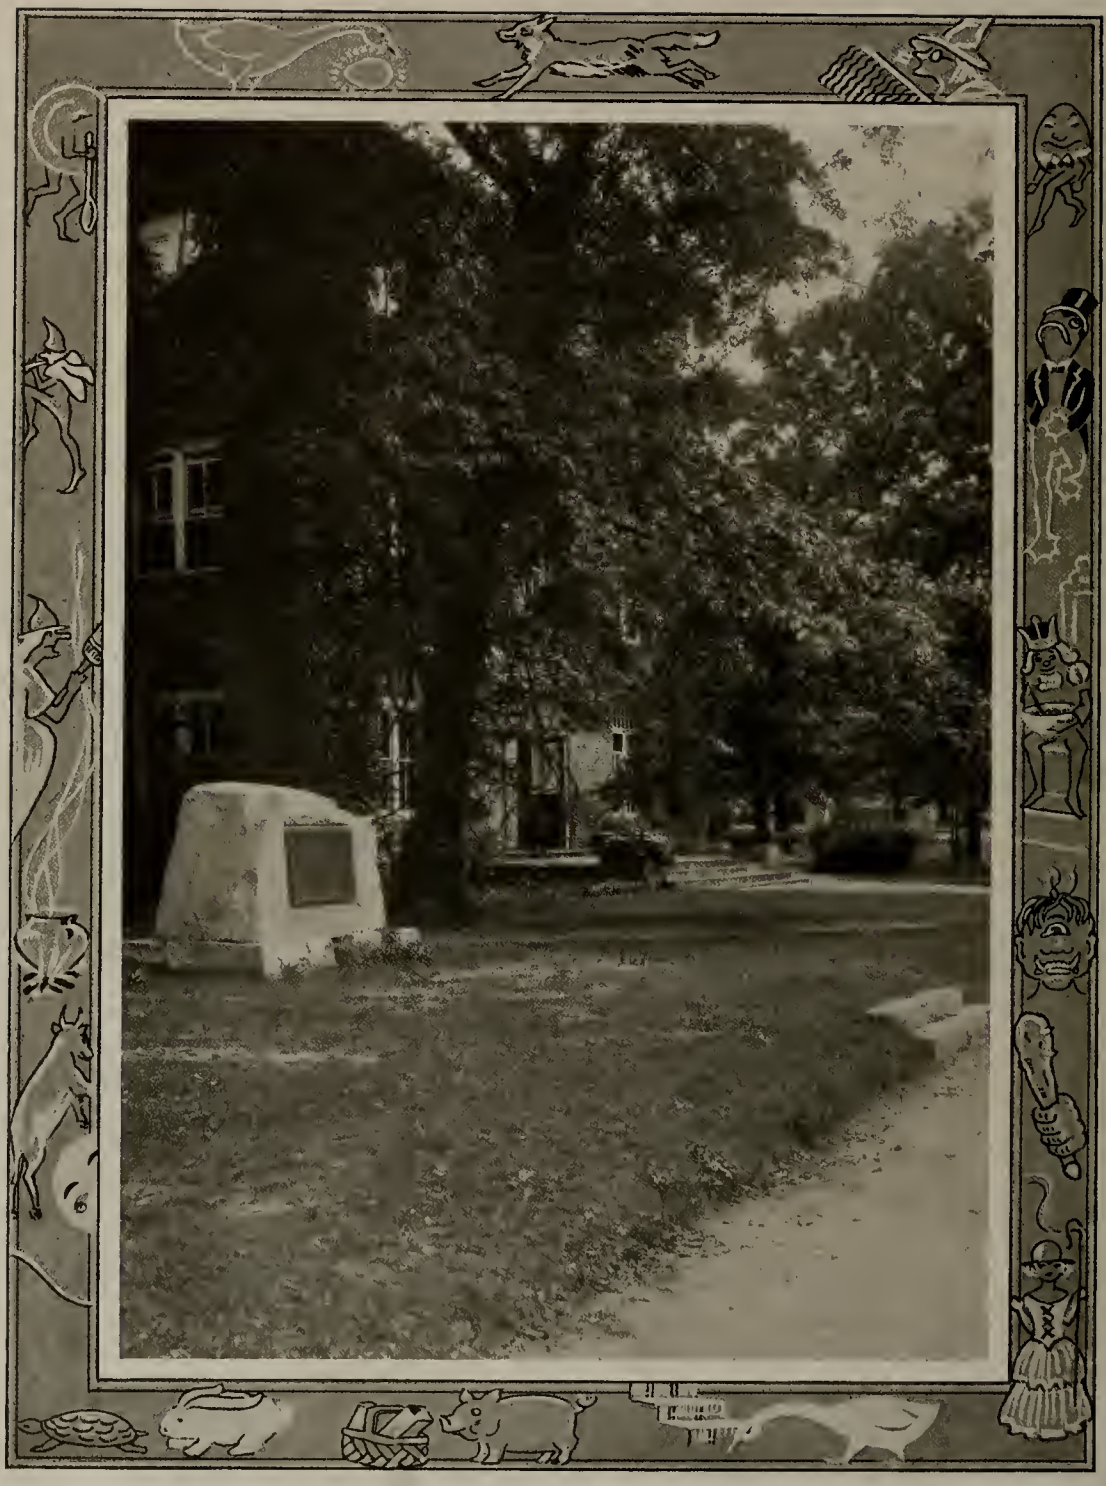
You will enhance its candlelight.

"For Beauty hideth everywhere, that Reason's child may seek her."



"We may build more splendid habitations,
Fill our rooms with painting and with sculpture,
But we cannot buy with gold the old associations."

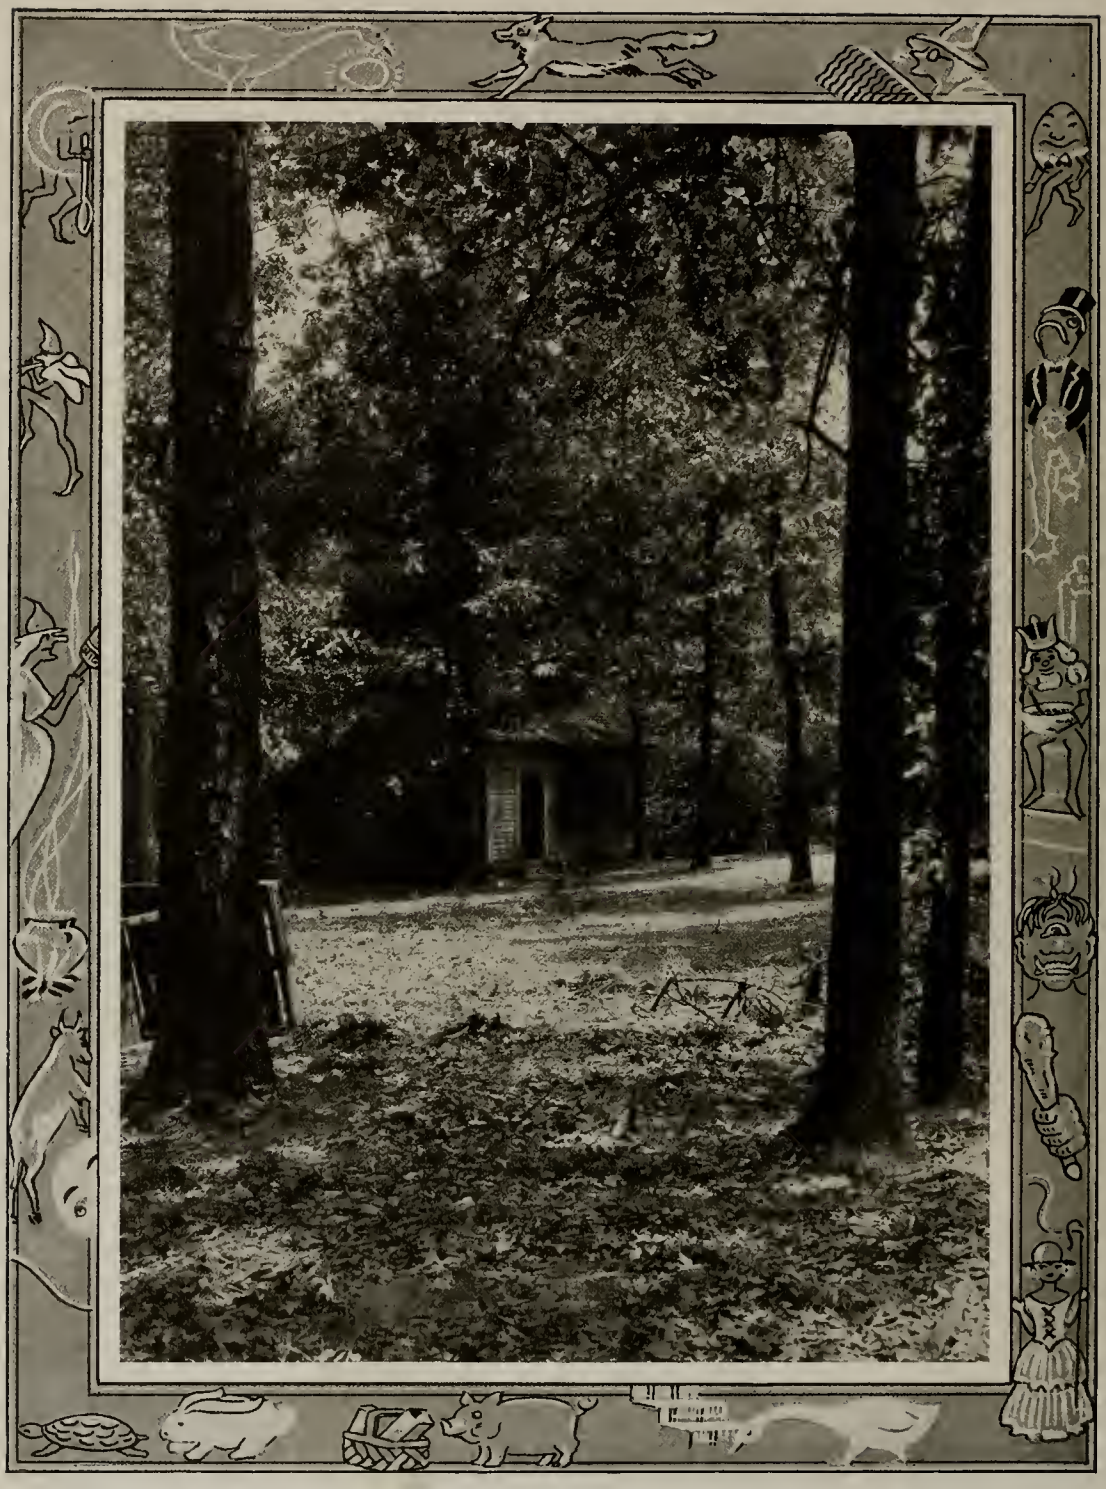
"Slow on your walls the shadows creep;
So many hours for food and sleep;
So many hours 'til study tire;
So many hours for hearts' desire."

"These shades are still the shades of gladness."

"Here shines, undimmed, one blissful day."

"The lovely shapes and sounds intelligible,
Of that eternal language, which thy God utters."

"A sylvan scene, and as the ranks ascend,
Shade above shade, a woody theater of stateliest view."



"I cannot but remember such things were, which were most precious to me."

Flora Macdonald College

A Retrospect

Founded 1896 Renamed 1915

To those who love bonny Scotland, to those who honor her past and take interest in her present and future, and whose hearts sing in time with her tales of valor and noble deeds of long ago, the name of Flora Macdonald means worthy womanhood. History records the escape of Bonny Prince Charlie and gives the heroine due acclaim, but fails to mention much of the later struggles of the noble, gallant Flora.

Few know that after Flora Macdonald became the wife of Allan Macdonald she and her husband came to America and made their home in what is now the state of the North Carolina. It was not altogether a new country to these two, however, for they settled side by side with the McLeods, McIntoshes, McKenzies, and others of the old country. On the banks of the Lumber and Cape Fear rivers these sturdy Scots established their homes, holding fast to the love of Scotland, and the honor and traditions of their race.

It was a hard struggle, but the persevering Scots were ever persistent and successful. The Revolution came, and once more the gallant Flora took a leading part in urging the Scots to battle for the cause of the house of Hanover. After the war she and her family returned to Scotland to spend the remainder of their lives, leaving behind the graves of two of her children under the whispering pines of the new land.

As years passed on the country prospered and grew; but time brought problems to these descendants of the gallant Scots. One serious problem was the question of an education for their children, with far from adequate means.

In 1896, as if in answer to their call, Rev. Charles G. Vardell came to Red Springs and founded a little academy for girls in the heart of the Scotch settlements. Through his courage, faith, power, strong heart and sturdy perseverance, he established a school where daughters of these people might be trained. The beginning was made through the donation of the people of four thousand dollars and a few acres of land. The first building was erected and school begun. Day by day, their leader pushed on until the college grew, the faculty increased, more students came, and the buildings were more comfortable and well equipped.

In 1914 the Scottish Society of America met in Fayetteville, and after consulting with Dr. Vardell, the speaker of the occasion, Dr. James A. Macdonald proposed that the college be made a living memorial to Flora Macdonald, having as its aim to be an institution worthy to bear her name and to be a link between the old land and the new. He stated further that it was fitting that the institution, situated as it was to train the daughters of the noble clans, should be a memorial to the great heroine, "herself a Presbyterian, a college graduate, and a noble example of Christian womanhood."

In a year's time the college was formally named Flora Macdonald, indissolubly linking, with its aims and purposes, Scots of the United States and Canada and those of the mother land in Britain.

Since that time it has not failed in any of its purposes, the ideals of its heroine being the ideals of the institution. Outstanding Scotsmen of England and America have been in touch with it individually and in their societies ever since. It has come to mean a tie of friendship and a bond of brotherhood between the old land and the new. In 1925, King George of England, through the Stewart Society, presented a cornerstone to the college, bearing this inscription:

"This tablet of granite from Balmoral was gifted by His Majesty, King George V, to the Stewart Society for presentation to the Flora Macdonald College, in memory of a Scottish heroine, and as another link between Britain and America. 1745-1925."

THE CLASSES

Would Old King Cole be happy here,
Where few male students trod,
Could Little Miss Muffet sit all day,
While our girls study hard?

Would Simple Simon feel at home
In a Flora MacDonald Class of Math,
Could Little Bo Peep go fait asleep
Under the Wise Prof's scrutiny & wrath?

Would Jack & Jill and Peter Piper,
Cram and Bone until very late,
So that they, like all of us,
Might some day fill the hope
To Graduate?

To the Seniors

Dear Seniors, a tiny boy am I,
Self-conscious, and so very shy.
Please let me write this note to you—
Although I'm shy, my love is true.
When Sue and Gertrude came to me,
I was sleepy as I could be.
However, after some contemplation
And a few words of explanation,
I realized with right much joy
That I was quite a lucky boy.
"Your Mascot," such a surprise, you see,
I hardly knew 'twas meant for me.
To be your pal all thro' the year
Is the aim of your mascot, Seniors Dear.

JAMES HOBBS.

Lover of mischief, blithe servant of fun—a synonym for merriment! We wonder what "magic there can be in words that urge some eyes to dance." She smiles and her eyes develop laughing mellow twinkles and her nose crinkles deliciously. This is our gay little "George," whom "the feast, the revel and the entangling dance allure." She's sure to be happy, for she's "found life one long excuse for laughing."

"And the forest's life is in her,
All its mystery and its magic."

"Rufus" is our little Hiawatha and, with her, "a drenched and dripping apple tree" is the more vividly splashed in color. And again she is a veritable "Puck," all jokes and fancy, like a rash little boy, that "merry wanderer of the night," who jesting in Oberon, makes him smile, and always playing in her vast playground, still knows the loveliness of ocean, star and hill. We'd be after fathoming the charm of Kathryn's personality. She is helpful, she is sincere, she is miraculously efficient in all she does. Besides, as a friend, she is understanding and most sympathetic. She is gifted with that rare but blessed characteristic of finding beauty in all things, and perhaps that is the secret of her lovely temperament.

"A pinch more rouge on the right cheek,
And Venus herself shines less."

Only a poet could express in his most striking style the charm and daitiness of Alma. But her calm and sunny exterior belie the imp within her; it sets fire to the smouldering glow in the depths of her merry brown eyes. "Deftness"—that word seems coined for Alma alone. How impossible to imagine her bungling at anything!

It's a pity that anyone as pretty and cute—I use "cute" advisedly—as Carrie should ever have to bother her merry head about such deep subjects (and objects) as pedagogy or over-frantic attempts to trace the clinical significance of hunger pains. For Carrie was made to be set up as queen in some man's heart, making him laugh, as she does us, with her lil' Chawleston brogue and hen-chuckle.

Senior Class Poem

There's a strain of music in the air
That fills our souls with joy.
Each heart revibrates to the tune,
There's nothing to annoy,
For the pine boughs are singing new songs with old gladness.

Through four long years we've gathered here
To study, work and play.
This morning dawned as any morn,
And yet it's a new day,
And the pine boughs are singing new songs with old gladness.

This is the day of all the days,
Our life is just begun.
So, as we leave our records here
For greater things beyond,
May the pine boughs keep singing new songs with old gladness.

The field of life stretches out before.
We've each our work to do.
Let's do it with our deepest might,
With hearts strong, brave, and true,
And let the pine boughs keep singing new songs with old gladness.

Then at the end of life's long road
And with the setting sun,
We'll hear the Master's welcome voice
As He proclaims, "Well done."
And the pine boughs still singing new songs with old gladness.

CLASS POET.

Senior History: A Tale

COLLEGE has the power of rejuvenation. If Ponce de Leon had known about Flora Macdonald College, he could have saved a world of heart-breaking agony and disappointment. We have no Fountain of Youth, but we have a spring. It has the distinctive power of making all who drink there gain flesh at an alarming rate. The secret of our youth lies not in any fountain, but in our invigorating life. It supplies us with superabundant energy, it satisfies, and it gives us the poise to be nonchalant under the most trying circumstances.

As an illustration of these marvelous qualities, allow me to use the Class of 1930. In 1926 they arrived. By "they" I mean the band of sophisticated young women who entered the college of youth for better or worse in that memorable year. They were languid, weary, leased with the life which they had experienced in a long existence of seventeen jaded years. They counted in their number valedictorians, basketball heroines, class presidents, and cheer leaders who had been the pride of their home towns. There were those whose graduation from high school had been greatly praised, others whose graduation was a great surprise. Having emerged from the glamor of commencement, the future defenders of the Blue and Gray plunged into the depths of ennui. In that state they entered college. Now that the facts are made clear, let me continue with my tale.

One of the first and foremost aids to rejuvenation was a certain rule, lights out at ten-thirty o'clock. This rule had been provided for the purpose of assuring that all beauty sleeps would be taken. Not only does sleep aid in preserving complexions, but also it takes up a large amount of time which young women might spend in boring themselves and others. On rising in mornings they were invited to the dining room, where they were at liberty to dispose of all the bacon and grits to be found there. After a short while the Class of 1930 and all other ladies of the student body were requested to walk for fifteen minutes. Now herein lies a part of the secret of youth. While mere walking was permitted, frolicking like young lambs and running like rabbits were encouraged. These exercises lightened the spirits and lifted loads of stupid care from the mind. If Ponce de Leon had been acquainted with a mysterious quantity called vitamins and with the benefits of playful activity, he could have bought a box of grits and a pair of "gym" bloomers. On account of those possessions, the Class of 1930 lived in peaceful bliss. Some authorities declare that having won the basketball championship and the tennis cup for 1926-'27 had a great deal to do with their happiness. Thus was passed an eventful nine months. Everybody was allowed to go home in May in order to secure a little relaxation after a strenuous year spent in search of lost youth.

In September, 1927, the Class of '30 returned to Flora Macdonald College to continue the process of rejuvenation. It was deemed necessary by the wisest members of the class to instill a spirit of proper reverence for all things Sophomore in the hearts and minds of various Freshmen. To the critical and experienced eyes of the Sophomores the new class seemed exceedingly staid and dignified. That would never do. They must act gay and youthful. The Class of 1930 was very willing to aid them in every way possible, particularly on stunt night. It is worthy of note that the Sophomores had, by that time, allowed their sophistication to wear thin enough to show a little natural exuberance underneath. Following the excitement of the first several days they began to accustom themselves to the new work of Sophomore English against the old background of bacon and grits. Some young ladies added chemistry to their schedules in the quest of youth. That same year an important discovery was made. Blase business women who go to the expense and trouble of having their faces lifted could profit by this addition to science. If they but knew it, the chanting three times daily of "Whan that Aprille with his shoures soote," and other excerpts from Chaucer will have the same effect on the facial muscles as the most expensive massage. Certain members of the Class of '30 can give personal accounts of its benefits, and will do so gladly on the receipt of a stamped self-addressed envelope. In case that sufficient progress is not made in a reasonable length of time, the class would advise practicing the "Tableau des Sons," which is found in a little purple book called Brown's "French Diction."

Still in search of vim, vigor, and vitality, the class returned to grace the rank known as Junior. Back to the college that was giving them priceless youth they came. This time they were fixed with ambition. The aspiration to win the hockey banner burned in their hearts like a lambent flame. Sufficient to say they won it. That year they adopted as mascot the bulldog, in spite of the fact that many members thought that a little white poodle would be darling. By that phase in their existence '30 began to realize how far they had progressed from Freshman days. No longer were they weary with life. It seemed a glamorous adventure. Just over the horizon was what men have sought throughout the ages—youth, real youth that does not assume the airs and ways of age, glorious youth, daring youth. Again we remember the sad failure of Ponce de Leon. The Class of '30 knows the secret that he sought so long.

Then as a final polishing up on the work of the previous three years came the Senior year. By the time the subjects of our experiment had reached the final stage in the process of rejuvenation, a bored, discontented person would have to be sought with an anti-aircraft searchlight. Diogenes' lantern would be too out of date to consider using. Nobody has ever heard of his finding anybody with it at anyrate.

The Class of '30 would like to have it generally known that it is a matter of pride with them that they have never yet expressed on any test paper the half of their knowledge. Some wit has said that to tell a secret to a woman is to shout it in the ear of the whole world, but that class now under discussion has always regarded as strictly confidential all matters discussed in class. Therefore, they have oft-times refused to divulge any information that they have learned even to the teachers. From the appearance of child-like guile on their faces one would never guess that they had ever heard of trigonometry and physics. Yet these subjects were very potent in aiding them to proceed from a pose of blase sophistication to one of blushing youth.

The process of rejuvenation as followed by the Class of 1930 has only made use of the principle that the more you know the more there is to know. The girls of that class entered college with a false idea of their own importance. They leave it knowing that they have firmly established a place for themselves in Flora Macdonald's history. They entered feeling old in the ways of the world; they leave feeling full of youth and hope. Truly college has the power of rejuvenation.

CLASS HISTORIAN.

Last Will and Testament

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
COUNTY OF ROBESON

RED SPRINGS

We, the Seniors, Class of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty, on this nineteeth day of May, as our flag, the blue and grey of the most tender memories, slowly descends to make room for the purple and white, do hereby write and declare our last will and testament.

SECTION I.

Article I. To our Alma Mater we leave our deepest appreciation and love, together with a poignant sense of having brought to completion one distinct phase of our lives, and one which, in retrospection, seems to hold the most golden and carefree hours that we have ever spent, remembering also that there are thorns mixed with even the most beautiful of roses.

Article II. To that cultured and painstaking body, our faculty, we will and bequeath the joyful relief of seeing new faces on the front row. (Note: Also the back row.)

SECTION II.

Article I. To the incoming Seniors we unselfishly bequeath the thrill of pushing us into the cold world and the bliss which we know they anticipate in setting up their lares and penates in our warm place.

Article II. To the Class of '32, the soon-to-be Juniors, we will the unhampered freedom of going down town three times a week, with the earnest admonition that they shall not forget to sign up outside Miss Johnston's door.

Article III. To the incoming Sophomores we leave the inevitable hue and cry and soap-box speeches after Bigger-and-Better Sophomore Privileges. To them also we bequeath the heart-clutching vision of endless Sophomore English tests.

Article IV. To the babies, the incoming Freshman Class, we will the delicious thrill of being away at school for the first time, and the bliss of having the DARLINGEST big sister.

SECTION III.

Article I. I, Georgia Adams, do will my beautiful knees, my beginning to study for tests a week in advance, and incidentally my "A" pluses to Edna Wilson.

Article II. I, Helen Alexander, do will my curl papers and big bass voice to Virginia Tate.

Article III. I, Katherine Alford, will my madonna face and my "tennistic" ability to Cornelia Lafferty.

Article IV. I, Ruth Bain, do will my places as Miss Connor's right-hand man, and rip-snortin' wing on the Senior hockey team to Mary Richmond.

Article V. I, Irene Bennett, do will my interest in Maxton Junior College (with tears) and my coveted honor as Miss Ettie Brown's pet French star to Walker Hamer.

Article VI. I, Laura Beatty, do hereby will my astonishing resemblance to Clara Bow and my trips around the block to flirt with town talent on Sunday afternoons to Lorine Bryant.

Article VII. I, Annie Sue Bost, do will my prominent interest in anything that comes along, be it even rugs for the front hall, and my Pepsodent smile, to Sam Hansel.

Article VIII. I, Jane Carson, will my inexhaustible streams of knowledge, together with my school girl figure (thanks to an advertisement in College Humor), to Mary Mills.

Article IX. I, Jennie Cassady, do reluctantly will my place at the table by Miss Connor, and my white pitcher, if whoever borrowed it ever brings it back, to Helen Wicker.

Article X. I, Nancy Conduff, do will my vocalistic ability to get up on C sharp and dangle my legs, also my little sister Ellen, to Mildred Fearrington.

Article XI. I, Curtis Coppedge, will the responsibility that is loaded upon my slender shoulders, and my annual boudoir on Vardell third, to Bert McKenzie.

Article XII. I, Dorothy Council, will my red georgette dress, my flirtatious brown eyes, and my time-worn expression, "perfectly beautiful," to Blanche Campbell.

Article XIII. I, Gertrude Crandall, do will my poker face at student body meetings, my fat Pittsburgh papers, and my secret passion for detective stories, to Lee Ila Pence.

Article XIV. I, Virginia Cunningham, do hereby will the House of Usher, West I, my optimism, and Bonnie Sweet Bessie, the blue alarm clock with the soprano voice, to Adele Andrews.

Article XV. I, Lucile David, will my unfailing sweetness on all occasions and my town friends, including Lightnin' Buie, with many tears to Julia Bradley.

Article XVI. I, Evelyn Drake, will my soft cot at the practice house, also my habit of rearranging furniture every morning at 5:30, to Ellen Mac Dannald.

Article XVII. I, Nancy Erwin, do will my beautiful black hair, my brother Frank Thompson, and my part as angel in F. M. C. A. pageants, to Evelyn Noel.

Article XVIII. I, Janette Freeman, will the attractions of Elon College and my other tooth brush, to Grace Ward.

Article XIX. I, Ruth Harris, will "my life, my joy, my food, my all the world"—the tearoom, and my red convict bob, to Jean Currie.

Article XX. I, Pearl Helm, do will my front seat in German class and my reputation for getting up my lessons, even including parallel on time, to Martha Purcell.

Article XXI. I, Ora Dell Henderson, will my long print dress and my unfailing help to girls on chemistry problems to Ann Henry.

Article XXII. I, Betty Hicks, do hereby will my "startling pianistic efforts," willed to me by Lucille Davis of last year, and my warm seat on the council, to Dorothy Pauline Wall.

Article XXIII. I, Kathryn Hunt, will my big hair pins and winter sunrises to Kyle Carson.

Article XXIV. I, Alma McBryde, do will my name as Flora Macdonald beauty expert, my red hair, "It," and other alluring qualities to Ella McGowan.

Article XXV. I, Martha McKinnon, will my pretty face and town fellow—we all know who—to Frances Steele. In case of Miss Steele's proving unworthy, the forementioned articles go to Mima Stiles.

Article XXVI. I, Florence Price, do will my distinctive type, my terrible habit of studying continually, and next year's photographer from White's Studio, moustache and all, to Hub McIlwinnen.

Article XXVII. I, Carrie Shepard, will my black marcel and custom of laughing at the unpsychological moment to Margaret Burgess.

Article XXVIII. I, Annie Ruth Sinclair, do will my "dark and brooding glance" to Sue Lyle Bardin.

Article XXIX. I, Margaret Smith, do will my affectionate nickname, "Shmitt," and my fifteen-minute dates on Monday nights, to Zaidee Smith.

Article XXX. I, Blanche Stewart, do will my intellect, my intelligence, and my intellectuality, to Aileen Williams.

Article XXXI. I, Edna Carlson, will my "Vic," Sonora Carlson, records included, to Esther Hutchins, with the warning not to play it after light bell on Saturday nights.

Article XXXII. I, Mary Eunice Wells, will my ability to play anything that faintly resembles a piano, also Miss Caldwell, with the radio thrown in, to Lucile Morton.

Article XXXIII. I, Edith Grace Wildman, will the joy of giving out specials on Sunday, and my inclination to argue points, to Ruby McDonald.

In witness whereof, we, the Class of 1930, set our hands and seal this nineteenth day of May, Anno Domini, one thousand nine hundred and thirty.

Senior Class Prophecy

"There was an old woman
Who lived in a shoe,
She had so many children
She didn't know what to do."

But one day she decided to give them a birthday party and invited all thirty-three of them back for a big reunion feast. For days she had been getting things ready. The tiny house had not received such a cleaning for five years. It gleamed from heel to toe. The windows were quite open, the laces having been removed and washed, and from each of them poured a cloud of dust. Inside was a veritable fog, created by my vigorous sweeping, for the old lady had set me to work. My arms and back were aching. Why couldn't the old woman afford a vacuum cleaner? But, of course, she was too thoroughly Scotch to consider getting one for me as long as there was an old broom in sight. However, as the dust settled, I realized that I was just as excited as the old woman over the prospect of seeing my classmates again. Soon the dusting was finished, the laces back in the windows and smoke poured again from the chimneys. The house was in order.

Already the guests were arriving. Annie Ruth Sinclair had driven up in a Sinclair taxi, bringing Jennie Cassady, Alma MacBryde, Lucile David and Martha McKinnon. Annie Ruth had taken over Mr. Ammond's Taxi Service and Sinclair Taxis had become a standard in Robeson County. It is said that Annie Ruth got her start riding Seniors home from town walking period. Jennie was librarian at F. M. C. As she spoke, I leaned closer to catch her whispered word that Helen Alexander couldn't come. She had gone as a pioneer with Byrd's colonization expedition to the South Pole. Alma MacBryde had a Beauty Shoppe in Red Springs, where she gave special rates to the college girls. She was an acknowledged authority on the care of the hair and her articles in 'Good Looks" of the Woman's Home Companion were classics. Lucile was a leader in the Red Springs young married set. Martha had been for several years associated with Gardner's making new cake recipes, but it was rumored that she intended to resign shortly and take up matrimony.

Just then a plane landed at our door. Pearl Helm stepped from the cockpit, followed by Ruth Bain; Ora Dell Henderson and Laura Beatty appeared from the rumble seat. Pearl was an aviatrix and had been in the Walter Reid Hospital the past two weeks with a fractured arm. Ruth was head nurse there, having won her laurels in the recent war between Madagascar and Afghanistan. Ora Dell and Laura, jointly famous as inventors of a toothpaste for chickens, were dietitians in this hospital.

Meanwhile Blanche Stewart, Edna Carlson and Curtis Coppedge had arrived from New York. Blanche was quite an eminent critic and her book reviews appeared frequently in the Saturday Review. Ed had really succeeded in journalism and we read her column in the New York Sun with great avidity. Curtis was doing welfare work. She told us that Kathryn Hunt and Ruth Harris wouldn't be able to come because they had gone to the South Seas as missionaries to a tribe of tree dwellers.

Another plane had landed with Betty Hicks in the cockpit. It semed that she had married a widower with three airplanes and six boys, so Betty was nurse and superintendent of six orphans on her own hook. With her was Irene Bennett, who had been conducting personal tours through France the past three years. Betty brought a radiogram from Katherine Alford to the effect that she and Sue Bost would be a day late. They were both at Montreat. Katherine had a little gray home on the top of Lookout. Sue had had a successful three years on Broadway, but did not find the life of an artist so free after all, and had given it up to become fishing instructor at Montreat.

There was another group: Nancy Erwin, who had just got out a patent on her new non-removable coffee pot; Janette Freeman, with a matronly air, saying her life was just one little Boyle after another; an individual in a slouch hat, glasses and flat-heeled shoes—Sunny, who had taken up archaeology with a passion; Georgia Adams and Dot Council, who were doing a Sister Act in Keith's, billed "The Long and Short of It."

Who was this with a limousine and a liveried chauffeur? Why, it was Carrie Shepard, Eunice Wells and four nurses, each carrying two babies. Carrie and Eunice had just returned from their joint concert tour in Europe. Eunice created quite a sensation with her eight babies—all of them under two years old. It was rumored that Eunice adopted them temporarily and returned them to the orphanage at the age of two. Carrie said they had left Nancy Conduff and Shmitt in Europe. Nancy's concert tour was not complete, and Shmitt, who held the American tennis title, was playing an international tournament that day.

Meanwhile, an old Ford had rattled up. Florence Price was at the wheel and with her were Gertrude Crandall, Evelyn Drake and Edith Grace Wildman. Florence was thin and slightly stooped. She had become practically a recluse, working on her chemical analysis of the suppressed desire in the species Homo Sapiens. Evelyn was chairman of the National Investigations Committee and she found her bacteriology a great help in improving sanitary conditions. Gertrude was also in Washington doing social service work. She was back of all this prison reform movement. Edith Grace was assistant to the postmaster-general. She often planed to Florida for the week-end, where she found an outlet for her musical propensities, playing the carillon in Edward Bok's tower.

When the last girl had scrambled out of the Ford, the old woman counted heads and found that all of her children were accounted for. Then:

"She gave them some broth
Without any bread,
And whipped them all soundly,
And sent them to bed."

Junior Class History

ON September 10, 1927, the arrival of one hundred and ten Freshmen caused much excitement among the old girls, especially among the "Big Sister Juniors." Now it must not be supposed that in the midst of all the excitement the Freshmen, the Class of '31, were calm and dignified, even though they made a mighty effort to appear so. But after the never-to-be-forgotten day on which the Sophomores delighted in making them feel "green," and in the dark of night conducted them as immigrants through the gym window on an unusually springy board, they really began to feel rather secure and somewhat at ease. Then began the usual work and play with most satisfying results in the play department anyway. Namely, the winning of the basketball championship, and thus acquiring the privilege of challenging the faculty team to the game of the season, the results of which they are far too modest to mention.

When again they came to Flora Macdonald, this time as Sophomores, a great transformation had taken place. No longer were they green and timid (at least they did not so consider themselves), but each loyal Sophomore endeavored to produce just such feelings in each wayward Freshman. Especially enjoyable to each Sophomorish heart were the nursery days of the Freshmen, the Sophomore nurses taking care to train their charges in manners meek and humble. Through the means of Sophomore English and other difficulties they weren't exactly comfortable always, but they were greatly cheered by the fact that the Class of '31 won the basketball championship and the athletic banner. And soon commencement time came and they saw their big sisters receive their diplomas and realized that they were Juniors, and instead of having big sisters they had little sisters.

Though the Class of '31 is an unusually large Junior Class, many of their companions of Freshman and Sophomore days failed to return to help them bear the enormous Junior responsibilities which were suddenly theirs. But together the returned forty-nine of them labored over showing sisterly affection toward their newly acquired little sisters, and placing the purple '31 upon the hockey banner. Now they are anticipating the next semester with its work and play and Junior-Senior!

Little spots on the bed and floor.
There is something so utterly, ruthlessly good
About rain that I simply adore!

I am so glad that the swamp is free
And red birds swoop at your will,
For out in the world there are things to be had,
But you have to foot the bill!

Flora Macdonald Christian Association

The Purpose

The Flora Macdonald Christian Association, affirming the Christian faith in God, the Father, and in Jesus Christ, His only Son, our Lord and Savior; and in the Holy Spirit, the Revealer of Truth and the Source of power for life and service; according to the teaching of the Holy Scriptures and the witness of the church, declares its purpose to be:

To lead students to faith in God through Jesus Christ;

To lead them into membership and service in the Christian Church;

To promote their growth in Christian faith and character, especially through the study of the Bible.

To influence them to devote themselves in united effort with all Christians to making the will of Christ effective in human society, and to extending the Kingdom of God through the world.

Jokes

Ruth: "Seven weeks from today you will be abnormal."
Kathryn: "How so?"
Ruth: "You will be A.B."

Adelle: "Do your shoes hurt?"
Sunny: "No, but my feet do."

Sally Watts: "I've been sitting here an hour and the vanishing cream hasn't moved yet."

Frances Barnwell: "Should a person be punished for something he hasn't done?"
Miss Munroe: "Of course not."
Frances: "Well, I haven't done my English yet."

She laughed when I sat down at the piano. Some fool had removed the stool.

"The wisest crack of all is to keep the one in your face closed."

"How can I make anti-freeze?"
"Hide her woollen pajamas."

And now the story of the dumb freshman who thought no man's land was the women's gymnasium.

Mrs. Looper: "What is the highset form of animal life?"
Wena Hambaugh: "The giraffe."

Trudy: "Who was Bacchus?"
Ed: "The god of wine, silly."
Trudy: "What's he god of now, stupid?"

Betty: "Where have you been?"
Irene: "On a guessing contest."
Betty: "Thought you had a test in French?"
Irene: "I did."

Florence: "If I'm studying when you come in, Jane, wake me up."

Nelle says nothing disturbs her piece of mind.

No one has ever complained of a parachute's not opening.

"Why are there so many onions on the campus?"
"So all the girls will know their onions."

are unhappy."
Eunice: "Yeah? And I had been wondering why I was so miserable."

Love is a funny thing. You never know what it is going to do to you until you meet the wrong man."

A woman can't be happy unless she finds some way of using her brains.

"Give me a sentence using the word 'writhe.'"
"I writhe every morning at theven-thirty."

"I want to ask a question about a tragedy."
"All right."
"What's my grade?"

Angel No. 1: "How did you get here?"
Angel No. 2: "Flu."

Miss Carson: "Give me the principal parts of swim, Helen."
Helen: "Swim, swam, swum."
Miss Carson: "Good; now, of dim."
Helen: "I'd rather not."

It isn't the original cost of a dog that counts; it's the pup-keep."

Jennie: "What is a rare volume?"
Miss Sample: "It's a volume that comes back at the right time."

While Bert McKenzie was at home she was missing for three days before police finally located her in a "pay as you leave" bus.

"Am I the first girl you ever kissed?"
"Well, you are the last, and the last shall be first."

Lucile: "I saw a man swallow a sword."
Mary: "That's nothing—I saw a boy inhale a Camel."

Edith Grace read her composition before the class.
Miss Fain: "Is your composition original?"
E. G.: "No, I made it up myself."

Kent: "What was the name of our president twenty years ago?"
Lucy Lee: "What?"
Kent: "Hoover."

FLORA MACDONALD COLLEGE

RED SPRINGS, NORTH CAROLINA

FACTS

Graduates are securing positions everywhere, and are earning excellent salaries.

Three thousand alumnae are engaged in 60 different occupations.

Forty-one branches of Alumnae Associations have been organized: 41 in North Carolina, 8 in South Carolina, 1 in New York, and 1 in Washington, D. C.

Ten F. M. C. girls are in mission fields: China, Japan, Africa and Mexico.

AIM

To be rated not by the number of students, but according to the class of work done.

To make the college an institution for teaching how to take part in the world's activities and the joy of service.

To declare emphatically for development of Christian Character through the study of God's Word.
